GUEST LECTURE BY DR. S. K. BHATIA, FORMER ASSOCIATE. PROF,

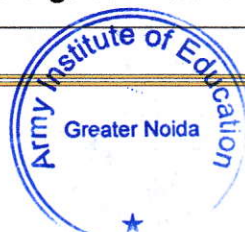

CIE, UNIVERSITY OF DELHI

Army Institute of Education (AIE), Greater Noida organized a guest lecture of the Course Code BED108 (Experiential Learning) on the topic "Content Based Experiential Learning; its Compatibility and Appraisal" by Dr. S. K. Bhatia, Former Associate. Prof, CIE, University of Delhi on 20 June 2022 from 10am to 11am on MS Teams platform. With the permission of honourable Principal Abhilasha Gautam, Dr. Jyoti Tiwari started the session and introduced the resource person of the day Dr. S K Bhatia by highlighting his achievements in the field of education. The objective of the session was to acquaint the students with the content based experiential learning model and understand its strength and weakness. Content Based Experiential Learning Model was introduced by S K Bhatia sir himself. Sir started the session by the basics of experiential learning and other models of experiential learning like Kolb Model, Kiser Model, ORID Model and Clayton's DEAL model. Later he has explained the Content Based model and its cycle. It was an interactive session as Sir was taking out time in between his presentation to interact with the students. He also talked about the strength of this model as well as the role of teacher in this model, Sir also took some doubts of the students and the event was conducted by the vote of thanks by Dr. Jyoti Tiwari, Course In-charge, BED108. All the 63 students of BED Batch 2021-23, 11 students of BEdSplEd Batch 2021-23 along with faculty members participated in this guest lecture. All appreciated the lecture a lot and found it useful and relevant.
